

B.A. DEGREE IN FASHION

JENNA ROBBERTSE

DEPUTY EDITOR
ELLE MAGAZINE

Excellence is a relative concept. It's relative to what you and other's perceive as attainable. To push yourself one step beyond the boundaries of what the consensus believes to be attainable - that is excellence. It is the ultimate goal of our studies, our work and our philosophies on life.

You cannot achieve excellence without being true to yourself and what you believe. Someone can work hard and be 'very good' at what they do. Excellence demands passion. And passion requires authenticity.

Learn to listen. Let others lead you by example but never be blinded by their impressions and opinions. Be open-minded, be patient, accept constructive criticism and have the humility to learn from the bottom-up.
